

Explore.Impact. Guitar Lessons

Instructor - Nate Walker, class of 2019

Introduction

My name is Nate Walker and I am a senior at De this year. I am participating in a student-driven course of independent study called “Explore. Impact.” For my study, I chose to focus on music, which has always been a passion of mine. In fact, I am a music performer, songwriter, producer, and instructor. Over the past two months, I have given over 10 guitar lessons at De as part of my Explore.Impact. Project and have also given lessons outside of school.

After piloting and refining my lessons on friends and senior classmates, I am ready to teach guitar lessons to a broader audience., I am reaching out to the whole student and faculty body of De and offering FREE guitar lessons to anyone who may have an interest in learning.

Why Take Lessons?

Through the guitar learning platform I’ve created, I guarantee students will learn:

- The parts of a guitar (1st lesson)
- Guitar and musical vocabulary (1st lesson and following lessons)
- How a guitar works (1st lesson)
- Ways to read music (1st lesson and following lessons)
- Several guitar chords (1st lesson and following lessons)
- How to play songs on guitar (After mastering fundamentals)

About My Guitar Lesson System

The purpose of this system is to introduce students with any level of interest in the guitar to its basic chords, notes, and physical parts while not boring players. The main priority of this platform is to give a basic introduction while fostering interest in the instrument. Students will be able to play the guitar after just one short lesson. I have prepared a system, but also personalize lessons to students with specific goals.
